ARTS, HUMANITIES & CULTURE

1) Princeton Society of Fellows in the Liberal Arts Announces 2019–2022 Fellowship Competition

- Deadline: August 22, 2018
- Amount: up to $269,000 over 3 years

The Princeton Society of Fellows, an interdisciplinary group of scholars in the humanities, social sciences, and selected natural sciences, invites applications for the 2019-2022 fellowship competition. Three to five postdoctoral fellows are appointed each year for three-year terms in residence to pursue research and teach half-time in their academic host department, the Program in Humanistic Studies, or other university programs. The fellowships carry with them an appointment as lecturer in the fellow's host department. Fellows are provided with a salary of approx. $88,800 per year, benefits, a $5,000 research account, access to university grants, a shared office, a personal computer and other resources. Fellows are expected to reside in or near Princeton during the academic year in order to attend weekly seminars and participate fully in the intellectual life of the Society.

1. Two Open Fellowships in the Humanities and Social Sciences (OPEN): Open to all disciplines represented in the Society of Fellows (see list below). The fellowship's responsibilities include both research and teaching (one course each semester for two years, one course in the third year). The fellow will either participate in a team-taught course or offer a self-designed course, in the host department or in an interdisciplinary program. In addition, the fellow normally does some advising in his/her specialty or related areas.

2. One Fellowship in Humanistic Studies (HUM): This fellowship is sponsored jointly by the Humanities Council and Society of Fellows, and is open to candidates in humanities disciplines represented in the Society of Fellows (see list below). The fellowship's responsibilities include both research and teaching (one course each semester for two years, one course in the third year). In the fall semester of the first two years, the fellow will join faculty from various fields in the humanities to teach Interdisciplinary Approaches to Western Culture from Classical Antiquity to the Middle Ages. In the spring semester of the first year, the fellow will offer a self-designed course either in the host department or an interdisciplinary program. In the spring semester of the second year, the fellow will offer an interdisciplinary undergraduate course in Humanistic Studies. This course might take a more intensive look at materials from "Approaches to Western Culture," or offer an interdisciplinary approach to the fellow's own area of humanities expertise. The fellow will be called upon to lead or contribute to occasional activities designed to build a sense of community among undergraduates in the Humanistic Studies Program—the Program offers local and international field trips, an undergraduate society, workshops and other opportunities.

CHILDREN, YOUTH & EDUCATION

1) Caplan Foundation for Early Childhood Invites LOI's in Early Childhood Welfare, Education, and Parent Education

- Deadline: September 30, 2018 (Letters of Intent)

The Caplan Foundation for Early Childhood supports innovative, creative projects and programs with the potential to significantly enhance the development, health, safety, education, and/or quality of life of children from birth through age five.

The foundation provides funding in the areas of early childhood welfare, early childhood education and play, and parenting education.

1) Early Childhood Welfare: Children can only reach their full potential when all aspects of their development — intellectual, emotional, and physical — are optimally supported. Providing a safe and nurturing environment for infants and preschoolers is essential, as is imparting to them the skills of social living in a culturally diverse world. To that end, the foundation supports programs that research best child-rearing practices and identify models that can provide creative, caring environments designed to ensure that all children thrive.

2) Early Childhood Education and Play: Research shows that children need to be stimulated as well as nurtured, early in life, if they are to succeed in school, work, and life. That preparation relates to every aspect of a child's development, from birth to age 5, and everywhere a child learns — at home, in childcare settings, and in preschool. The foundation seeks to improve the quality of both early childhood teaching and learning through the development of innovative curricula and research-based pedagogical standards, as well as the design of imaginative play materials and learning environments.

3) Parenting Education: To help parents create nurturing environments for their children, the foundation supports programs that teach parents about developmental psychology, cultural child-rearing differences, pedagogy, issues of health, and prenatal care and diet, as well programs that provide both cognitive and emotional support to parents.

HEALTH & MEDICAL RESEARCH

1) Hirschberg Foundation Invites Applications for Pancreatic Cancer Research Grants

- Deadline: August 15, 2018
- Amount: up to $80,000 over 2 years

The Hirschberg Foundation for Pancreatic Cancer Research is accepting applications for its Seed Grant Program.

The annual program provides start-up funding for basic scientists and clinicians who intend to test innovative ideas for improving diagnosis and to develop new treatment modalities for pancreatic cancer; to obtain preliminary data required for additional funding from other agencies for pancreatic cancer research; to advance the understanding of pancreatic cancer cell biology, biochemistry, physiology, morphology and response to therapy; and to establish collaborations within the field for mutual projects that can be considered for further funding. The Foundation expects that seed grant awards will generate quality abstracts, papers, presentations, as well as new proposals. Priority will be given to investigators whose primary intent is to build a strong curriculum in pancreatic cancer research.

Grant amounts will be determined on a project-by-project basis.

To be eligible, applicants must possess a Doctor of Medicine (M.D.) or Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) degree with the intent of developing a strong curriculum in pancreatic cancer research. All levels of academic faculty (assistant, associate, and full professors) are eligible. In addition, research scientists and research associates with recommendations from their academic faculty supervisor(s), as well as postdoctoral fellows and young investigators who have completed two years of training in pancreatic cancer research in any academic or private institution of the U.S. may apply.

SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY & ENVIRONMENT

1) Sarah DeCoizart Perpetual Charitable Trust Accepting Proposals in Environment, Species Conservation & Animal Welfare

- Deadline: August 15, 2018
- Amount: $20,000 to $100,000

The Sarah DeCoizart Perpetual Charitable Trust supports work related to the environment, species conservation and blindness-related services and research. The Trust may support a range of projects dealing with environmental hazards, wildlife conservation, protection of ecologically important areas (incl. farmland, river and watershed initiatives, fisheries protection) and land use policy. The latter may include preservation of parks and open space in urban areas or analyses of environmental problems associated with sprawl.

The foundation makes grants primarily in the Northeast region of the US. Grants range in size from $20,000 to $100,000 per year. Multi-year requests are considered.

ADDITIONAL OPPORTUNITIES (Includes: Employment Research, Public Policy, Criminal Justice, Social Justice, etc.)1) Russell Sage Foundation Accepting Proposals for Non-Standard Employment Research

- Deadline: August 20, 2018
- Amount: $175,000

The Russell Sage Foundation/Kellogg Foundations Initiative on Non-Standard Employment seeks to support innovative social science research on the causes and consequences of the increased incidence of alternative work arrangements in the United States. We define alternative work arrangements as temporary help agency workers, on-call workers, contract workers, and independent contractors or freelancers. We use the terms non-standard employment and alternative work arrangements interchangeably. This initiative falls under RSFs Future of Work Program and represents a special area of interest within the core program, which continues to encourage proposals on a broader range of labor market issues.

We are especially interested in novel uses of new or under-utilized data and the development of new methods for analyzing these data. Potential sources of data include the 2015 Survey of Enterprising and Informal Work Activities (EIWA) of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors and the 2017 Contingent Worker Supplement (CWS) of the Current Population Survey. Proposals to conduct field experiments, in-depth qualitative interviews, and ethnographies are also encouraged. Smaller projects might consist of exploratory fieldwork, a pilot study, or the analysis of existing data. RSF encourages methodological variety and inter-disciplinary collaboration. The foundation will consider proposals for cross-national research that has clear implications for the U.S. labor market.
